It's a Rhodia A5 Dot Pad!

Rhodia/Clairefontaine produce some of the best paper around for notepads, especially if you're a fountain pen user. The paper doesn't bleed, the ink never soaks through to the next page and there's very little ghosting, allowing you to write on both sides of the paper.

Clairefontaine Vs Rhodia? - posted in Paper and Pen Paraphernalia: I adore Rhodias A5 graph ruled paper. I got one of their webnotebooks and Im not as thrilled with the dot grid. I also notice the webnotebook has different paper (ink takes longer to dry) and it says made by Clairefontaine in French in the front. So if I were to buy a graph ruled Clairfontaine notebook, would it be more or less ...
